WHAT HAS MR. TAFT ACCOMPLISHED?

As he [illegible] once more surveys the long [illegible] sacred precincts of the White House he will have reason to ask himself what has been gained by his two months' tour.

To be sure he has broken the long-distance record for Presidential trips, made hundreds of speeches covered thousands of miles and been gazed upon by millions of people all of which has been faithfully chronicled by his private secretary. Evidently he enjoys that sort of thing or he would not do it. But that Mr. Taft has strengthened the Administration [illegible] country or settled his political projects is conceded by doubtful [illegible] certainly [illegible] performance has [illegible] picked [illegible] efficiency [illegible] lowered the dignity of the office [illegible] eyes of the public.

On tariff revision his attitude has won him little partisan support and has irritated many old adherents. He has stood pat on his vetoes on tariff reduction bills and tried to make an academic question of a popular grievance while extending comfort to special interests intrenched behind tariff schedules that he has condemned as excessive and indefensible.

On the trust question he has taken a firm stand on the Sherman law and the Supreme court's recent decisions. The hostility he has aroused in certain quarters does him honor. It would have been silenced if instead of calling upon business to square itself with the law he had been willing that the Department of Justice should square its policy with Wall street's wishes.

On the question of arbitration Mr. Taft has [illegible] headway and conclusively shown that the people are with him in seeking to promote the cause of peace in the face of factious opposition of Senators and politicians who have attacked the British and French treaties. This is the one respect in which his trip has most fully succeeded.

But too much speech making soon becomes tedious. In half a [illegible] addresses Mr. Taft could [illegible] and [illegible] to say [illegible] and two months. After only [illegible] lose the attention [illegible]

At the Hamilton [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] by telling [illegible] you're [illegible] ican de[illegible] he does not appear to [illegible] it ought to [illegible] able [illegible]

[illegible] trips was [illegible] half in speeches, sixty days [illegible] Pullman car standing, [illegible] platform. Than he is [illegible] politician who has often [illegible] —New York World.

MONTGOMERY'S HOTELS

The chatty man who sits on Street Corners for the Montgomery Journal probably doesn't get out of Montgomery often or very far when he does.

You people who went to the fair at Montgomery will listen! At the clerk tell you that he had just a pair room for still [illegible] or three, this is more than he would ordinarily rent this.

Montgomery's excellent hotel facilities attracted and are still attracting [illegible] attention.

That's [illegible] it doesn't what draw it.

The comfort of those bigger hotels in Montgomery would lead the public to [illegible] that they got but little business till fair week and then they hit em hard then to make both ends meet.

The Journal now says that this city has eight first class hotels, and as many more second class or cheap rate hotels.

Shucks man wouldn't that [illegible] think that he's [illegible] who [illegible] in the city [illegible] town is crowded with people and half of them go back to second class the rest of the year.

When [illegible] you have been getting a good room at a hotel in ordinary times for $1.50 and find that the clerk put you in the same room for [illegible] fair week it make a [illegible] want to take a cot along with [illegible] and camp in the park or sit up all night.

There are many crying needs all over this country, but we believe there is one in Montgomery. Montgomery needs some hotels with managers who figure out the first of the year just what price they must get for their rooms to make a decent profit and then charge it rush or no rush, fair or no fair. When they are all taken then they are all taken and that settles it.

Hundreds and hundreds of people fair week in Montgomery got the last room and as soon as they promised to pay two or three prices for it saw the same clerk accommodate others right behind him with still other rooms at advanced rates.

That conduct will hang over the head of many of Montgomery and each [illegible] like [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] own [illegible] towns of the country about the size of Dothan a comparative system of delivering groceries has been tried. It works alright. The grocers like a man to do all the delivering. He has teams to make the delivery with and does it as promptly or even better than if they were each keeping a lot of teams.

Take this town for instance. Let a man put on an automobile, with the back end torn out where he could pile truck on and he could deliver the groceries for all the grocery stores in town and keep the customers satisfied. He couldn't root for any one of course but he could deliver the goods and the housewife who waited until the last minute to order groceries could come all round being served.

The old horses could be sold and put out to grass and the rattlers wagons put on the dump heap. The livestock boys who do most of the delivering in Dothan they would have to learn to run a baggin cart. The thing ought to work in Dothan.

THE FARMING DISTRICT

We learn a lot about agriculture and the livelihood needs of the farmer by reading. Down Jones Valley [illegible] they have been telling the farmers that Jefferson county has produced more sweet potatoes than it knew what to do with and the farmers were obliged to sell them for forty cents a bushel. One of the housewives who had to buy those potatoes stated that she paid $1.30 a bushel for them and she for one wished to goodness she could strike some of the Jones Valley farmers before they struck the retail grocery store. There seem to be a wide middleman's profit somewhere in that potato deal, and while the papers are about it they might put on foot a movement to get the farmers and the consumers on a better understanding. There would be no trouble in disposing of the over supply of potatoes in Jefferson county if such an arrangement could be made.

IT'S LIKE HIM

It isn't every man that can take it as well as the old fellow in Kansas did the other day. He received word that his brother had died, leaving him a quarter of a million dollars. This old man had reached seventy odd a poor man, and after he puffed his pipe a few times said he did not believe he wanted it. Said better give it to the churches or the schools as he had been a poor man all his life and felt very well over it and inheriting that much money might make a fool of him and he didn't want a fool.

The old man had seen too many other people's heads turned by fortuitous fortunes they never earned. He knew that it didn't make for happiness and he was too old to try out a new method of living.

He probably did the best thing, but there are so few like him till the old man stands out almost alone.

GERMANY IT WORKS BOTH WAYS

Kansas made a pet for the suppression of all details in the disgraceful tarring and feathering trial now going on in her borders but Kansas prints in big type the exaggerated accounts of every Southern lynching. The publicity that is sauce for the negro lynching for an unspeakable crime is also sauce for the tarring and feathering of an innocent young white girl by a party of white hoodlums.—Comerc al Appeal.

It is reported that a little quiet blind tiger business is going on in Dothan. During the next few weeks court having adjourned and Christmas coming, would be a good time for the officers and citizens who want the law upheld to keep their eyes peeled. The man who sells whiskey now in this county had as well tell Judge Jones that he doesn't know what he is talking about.

There are too many of the governor's friends in Alabama holding offices who dodge every time somebody pops a cap to suit this paper. A man who is forever afraid somebody will tell something on him ought to go back to private life where his conduct isn't subjected to so much criticism. We are sure that ex Lieutenant Power will find that he can get much more out of life now, that he has cut loose or has been slung loose, or kicked loose from office.

Wonder if the dog barked or growled when Taft reached the White House, says the Comercial Appeal. Usually when a dog master gets off and leaves him for an indefinite time, the dog leaves home, which is probably so in this case.

If, as the Andalusia Star suggested the law required the mayors to have all cases docketed published in the newspapers once a week, there would be a let up on crime, there would be, but at the same time, police news would be hot reading.

It seems that the whole state of Kansas, including the little city of Lincoln Center, is ashamed of the tarring and feathering record made by that town. Men are pleading guilty of the crime since the trial has been started.

Old Doc Wiley is becoming real useful. He is now giving out information about eating Thanksgiving dinner. He wants a lot of the mince pies cut out but says we can eat turkey. He might but we can't.

If Mr. Brooke has given the ex colonel a chance to take it back but we doubt whether anything is taken back or not. When the fur is rubbed the wrong way on Brooke you could get a row out of him.

This long distance walking business has been overworked. Now a man proposes to walk a couple of thousand miles while in the air or near. Automobiles all over the country too.

A large brilliant meteor passed over this place Saturday night, from east to west.—Guntersville Democrat. Moon, or Jack O lantern?

[illegible] Enough of Law

A young man who is now general solicitor of a railroad began life practicing law in a Missouri village. One of his first cases was before his father, who was a justice of the peace. After a stormy wrangle between the young attorney and his adversary the old gentleman decided the case against his son's client. The young man gave vent to some expressions of indignation, gathered up his books and started to leave the room. His father pushed his specs up to his forehead and began mildly to lecture him saying:

"Young man do you expect to make your living practicing law?"

The son who had by this time reached the door shouted back as he retired from the field:

"Not before such a blamed fool court as this."

He abandoned the law and entered in railroading with great success.—Green Bag.

German and Swiss Engineers Wrestle With Project to Facilitate Ship Movements on River

[illegible]—One of the most difficult engineering problems ever tackled [illegible] Germany is a plan to [illegible] the Rhine navigable from [illegible]

[illegible]

The most difficult technical problem [illegible] is the way of carrying out the scheme [illegible] overcome the rise of about 80 feet at the falls of the Rhine at Schaffhausen Here it is proposed either to build two locks of about 40 feet each or to put in a ship elevator similar to the one already in use at Hinrichsburg on the Dortmund Ems canal where barges are run into huge tanks and these then lifted by hydraulic pressure to the level of the higher stretch of the canal

Another difficult point is at Laufenburg, some 15 or 20 miles east of Basle where the river rushes through a gorge and has a fall of about 45 feet and the water here is three times the volume at Schaffhausen A dam is already built here and will be completed in a few years, developing about 50 000 horse power

A number of other power plants of smaller proportions will be built at various points along the stream to overcome rapids finally a very large one will be built some ten miles below Basle by the Alsatian manufacturing city of Muhlhausen Manufacturing towns will spring up It is believed on both the German and Swiss sides of the river

The total cost of the undertaking is estimated at about $10 000 000 apparently not including dams now building Of this sum the three German states of Baden Wirtemburg and Bavaria are to pay $1 600 000 Switzerland $1 000 000 and Austria $1 600 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS THE BLIND TIGER

JUDGE THOMAS, OF MONTGOMERY, EXPLAINS FEDERAL STATUTES

Richmond Va Nov 17 —The federal government through the operation of its statutes was pictured as the friend of the blind tiger and the liquor interests against prohibition by Judge William H Thomas, of Montgomery, in an address delivered here last night on "The Prohibition Movement in the South"

With the conclusion of the address and discussions on franchises, taxation and police and liquor problems, the seventeenth annual meeting of the National Municipal League and nineteenth National Conference for City Good Government came to a close Los Angeles wanted the convention to meet there next year, but the meeting place was left to the executive council to name

"The practical effect of the United States revenue statutes interstate commerce laws, and the use of the mails," said Judge Thomas, is to make the government the friend and protector of the blind tiger, the brewer and the distiller in defeating the will of the people by granting federal licenses to whomsoever will pay to go into any prohibition state and violate the law If the government refused such licenses in prohibition territory a large percent of illicit liquor selling could be substantially abolished

The address of Judge Thomas was decidedly illuminating

Immediate Causes

The immediate cause of the prohibition movement throughout the south he said were

First—Rising conscience due to advanced education

Second The demand of the best men of the south for sober men.

Third—The boldness and lawlessness of the liquor traffic

Fourth—The increasing menace to the white population from the drinking by the negro race of alcoholic liquors and the manner in which those engaged in its sale were debauching them.

After setting forth the above causes, the jurist went at length into the movement, giving figures from each of the southern states He came to that conclusion in his address that prohibition does prohibit

SHE GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Physicians Failed To Help Mrs. Green, But She Finally Found Relief In Cardui.

Meridian Miss.—For 3 Years I suffered with female troubles so that I could hardly do my work. Two of the best doctors in our town treated me and I took lots of other medicines until I gave up all hope of ever getting well

One day I decided to try some Cardui. It did so much for me that I continued its use to the end of my life

Today I feel as well as any woman ever does. I recommend Cardui to all women.

A few bottles of Cardui will relieve most female troubles. It is a mild, tonic, strengthening medicine, made from pure herbs, that acts specifically on the female system. It builds up the nerve force and strength of women. Thousands of women have been restored to health and happiness by using Cardui. It may be just the medicine you need.

GOT RID OF THE OVERALLS

Good Advertising by an Inexperienced German Merchant That Disposed of Over-Supply of Goods.

The following story is told by E. F. Trefitz, the Chicago advertising expert. Trefitz was stopping over for several hours in a small town in Iowa on one occasion, when he ran across the German proprietor of a merchandise store who had been talked into buying $900 worth of overalls by a Chicago drummer.

"I'm swamped with overalls and can't sell them," said the proprietor to Trefitz. "That drummer just talked me into buying, when I didn't want all he sold me. They say you're an expert in advertising. Tell me what to do."

"As I was going to be in the town a couple of hours, I admitted I was something of an expert," continued Trefitz. "I told him to do a lot of advertising in the town's paper. He said he was running a couple of inches in the paper at a rate of $0.50 a year. I advised him to take a page every day for four days. My German friend replied the expense would be too much, as the rate per page was $2. Changing his mind, he said he would try it, and then he wanted me to write his advertisement. I declined, telling him I did not know his public. I advised him to write out something just the same as if he were trying to make an overall sale to a customer across the counter. A few days later I got a copy of the paper containing his first page ad. It occupied a small space in the center of the page and was to the point. It read:

"'A slaughter of overalls! I have $900 of the goods, which must be sold at once at a great sacrifice! Ninety cents a pair! The seat in them will last longer than your own!'"

Trefitz said he was curious to know how the German fared with his first page ads and was about to write to a banker friend in the little town when the mail brought him a letter from the fellow. It was to the effect that he had sold out his overall stock in the last pair on the fifth day, and greatly regretted that he had not made the price a dollar instead of 90 cents.

There is no limit to the life of newspaper advertising, if it be rightly done.

Not What He Expected.

"Darling," he murmured, "whatever induced you to care for a fellow like me."

"I really don't know, George," she replied. "Pa threatens to send me to a brain specialist."—Boston Evening Transcript.

THREE FOUND DEAD

Miami, Fla., Nov. 17.—Three persons were found dead in their home here this morning. They are:

H. K. Kollamer, a widower.

Helen M. Brown, sister of Kollamer.

Agnes Kollamer, aged 9, Kollamer's daughter.

The discovery was made by a negro delivering groceries and a post mortem examination will be held to ascertain the cause of the tragedy. The body of the man was found on the back porch and like the other two, the face was horribly distorted and gave evidence that death was accompanied by severe physical anguish. The body of the woman was found on the kitchen floor, and the child's body was in her bedroom.

NOW CITIES MAY ADVERTISE

Slogans That Fail to Attract Attention Because They Lack Meaning Although Well Phrased.

In speaking on the subject of municipal advertising, Charles Zueblin of Boston said recently: "Advertising is anything which gets publicity. Successful advertising is anything which delivers the goods. Good advertising is a story of goods which advertise themselves. Much advertising is inadvertent and would be gladly suppressed, but the publicity which attracts attention at least explains how to advertise. Cities have been advertised by typhoid fever, bubonic plague, tuberculosis, fires, floods and earthquakes. The advertising is just as conspicuous whether the crime is meritorious or the result is criminal.

"The name of Reno [illegible] divorce suits, as Salt Lake suggests union suits, Los [illegible] non-union suits, and Atlantic City non-suits. Reno also brings to mind the failure of the white man's home, as Chinatown symbolizes the failure of the white man's temple. The mention of Denver, despite all its charms, reminds us of anti-tuberculosis, as Pewaukee does of antitoxin and Oyster Bay of epidemic. The remembrance of Oyster Bay brings up the subject of slogans, since the new nationalism in [illegible] reform spelling is called New Thinkhoolism.

"Many cities try to attract attention by slogans which fall completely flat, in spite of their alluring alliteration or startling phraseology, unless they have a genuine meaning. For a long time Toronto attracted attention by its lemon-ade. 'Watch Tacoma Grow.' We did, and the revised decennial census showed a necessitated shift, diverting attention from the redbuck taken to parade a fictitious growth. A delightful Michigan city announces that 'Grand Rapids Knows How.' The cynical and inquiring ask what means that Grand Rapids knows it all? A Fort Wayne paper held a contest to secure a slogan and out of 2,000 suggestions 'Fort Wayne With Might and Main' was chosen. This is vigorous [illegible] not distinctive. They could have attracted more attention with 'St. Anthony, Saint Fort Wayne.'

"It is a great mind to select a great slogan, and usually the selection is an inspiration rather than the result of study. It was the late lamented C. C. Proctor Knott who christened Duluth the 'Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas.' Put energy behind such a slogan and it assumes another form. It immediately becomes the mediator or instigator of enthusiastic effort. Dry bones begin to rattle and the dumb begin to sing."

Chicago has an Enoch Arden who came home after an absence of twelve years, tried to smash the furniture, and was fined $75. The original Enoch was by all odds the luckier of the two.

A movement has sprung up to have the clocks roll off 24 hours straight, and a man may yet try to use the latch key at 22 o'clock which would be by no means unduly late.

A St. Louis judge says he finds newspaper reporters as honest and reliable as lawyers. Some of the reporters will consider it a left-handed compliment.

Dr. Wiley tells us that smoking is on the decline, but he probably overlooks the fact that 26,456,584 corn cob pipes were made in Missouri last year.

A minister in Philadelphia has been urging religion in the kitchen, but he apparently forgets that the kitchen is the place where dyspepsia comes from.

[illegible] measure of comfort can be obtained in the intense heat spells which occur at intervals through the summer, by noting that even when the death toll is high, it is an exceedingly small percentage of the total population. For instance, the twenty who succumbed in Greater New York the other day made but an infinitesimal fraction of the millions forming the population. As a matter of fact, even this mortality which does exist could be reduced by more care of individuals for themselves and more prudent attention to heat conditions. It goes to prove that nature provides endurance for unusual exactions if people are observant enough of the ordinary laws of health to develop it.

A Jamestown, N. Y., alderman claims to have made an investigation which leads him to conclude that pure ice can be made for 75 cents a ton and delivered for an additional 75 cents a ton. It is needless to say that the ice companies will receive his [illegible]
